He's known for pushing the boundaries of all aspect of hairdressing with his often thought provoking ideas and vision.

My 1st Fellowship stage appearance was shortly after I arrived from France, 33 years ago. The event was the Fellowship masterclass compered by Joshua Galvin. It was suggested to me that I should do a classic men's cut as my approach was unlike anything seen in the UK. When I arrived at the venue, after seen the talent emerging from all the other demonstrators, I was petrified thinking I was about to demonstrate something so boring with my classic men's cut compared to the creativity in the room. I was so wrong, as I monopolised the event when everyone in the audience including the other participants came to watch what I was doing. Joshua was great help as I couldn't speak much English.

That day taught me that it is not what you do that matters but how you do it and that the Fellowship was full of like minded generous people happy to share each other's knowledge. That day I realised the fellowship is a path to build the success you want out of your career. The fellowship is a platform of opportunity and community of passionate hairdressers that's why I am a member and have been for 33 years.
